

Bio

Patrick Marshall is a 25-year-old Male currently living in Salt Lake City, Utah. Upon graduating from Texas A&M University in 2013 with a Bachelors in Communications, he was recruited by Union Pacific Railroad to Manage Yard Operations across the Dallas/Fort Worth Metroplex for 3 years.

Where Patrick thrived in the data collection and analyzation of the operations realm, he also found a love for technology, development and programming. Coming from a world where merely maintaining and sustaining was the name of the game; creating and building was all he wanted to do. In that, he left Dallas for Salt Lake City to give birth to his aspirations by enrolling in DevPoint Labs' 3-month long web-development and programming cohort where he currently resides.

With his transition into Technology, Patrick is bringing almost a decade of leadership and management experience, the knowledge of process improvement from that of a Fortune 150 company, and the natural ability to spot process deficiencies. In that, Patrick is confident in his abilities to tackle any obstacle and succeed just as he has always done.

Seeking a challenging position that will further his goal to make technology a more readily and financially viable option, Patrick seeks a values based company that prides itself in the same desire to stimulate and challenge its employees, harness sound moral conviction and maintain a healthy desire to affect sociotechnical systems across the world.